BAKING POWDER KING'S ESTATE WAS $16,500,000

W. Ziegler, Founder of Royal Co., Made Adopted Son Beneficiary.

YOUNG HEIR RECEIVED

Contest-Settled with Her for $375,000.

An accounting filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court by executors of the estate of William Ziegler, the millionaire baking powder manufacturer, showed that his property was worth more than $16,500,000. William Ziegler, ir., his adopted son, who was the chief beneficiary in his will, has already received $5,000,000 of the accumulated income.

The papers submitted yesterday covered two separate periods, the first from November 30, 1912, through September November 30, 1912, through September 10, 1913, the date of the death of Mayor Gaynor, who was a warm friend of the baking powder magnate and named as one of the executors and trustees of his estate. The accounting for the first period was made for the late Mayor by the Kings County Trust Company, his executor. The accounting for the second period, extending from September 10, 1913, to December 31, 1914, was made by Mrs. E. Maiilda Ziegler, widow of William Ziegler, and William S. Champ, surviving executors.

In the latter document was disclosed the fact that Miss Florence Louise Brandt Ziegler, a sister of William Ziegler, had received a $375,000 settlement from her brother after he became of age, two years ago. In October, 1913, Miss Ziegler lost a fight in the Surrogates' Court to obtain a half interest in the estate.

ment from her brother after he became of age, two years ago. In October, 1913, Miss Ziegler lost a fight in the Surrogates' Court to obtain a half interest in the estate.

The accounting for the first period showed that the total estate on September 10, 1913, was $16,548,610.41, including the accumulated income of $4,809, 216. Under the will of Mr. Ziegler the latter amount was to be paid to his adopted son when he attained his majority. The payment was deferred, however, because of the pending settlement with his sister, so it was after his twenty-first birthday that he actually became a millionaire in his own right.

According to the accounting, the Ziegler millions in 1810 consisted of $207,098.86 in cash; stocks and bonds, $10,052,074.55; notes received to the control of this will come from large cities where the prohibition movement is not so strong.

$111.500. and horses and personal effects, $30,988.

The total estate at the close of the second period was shown to be $11.825,879, which was after the accumulated interest had been paid to young Zeigler. That payment, the accounting said, was exactly $4.737,250,89, the amount left after an advance payment of $250,075 had been made to him before he became of age and after various payments for commissions and other expenses had been deducted.

Besides the lump sum of accumulated interest, William Ziegler, jr., has also received an income from the principal of the estate from November 30, 1912, to December 31, 1914, amounting to $1,296,205.18, the executors said. The net income from the Ziegler estate during that period was said to be $1,510,485.89. The quarterly returns from the Ziegler interests in the Royal Baking Powder Company, the company founded by William Ziegler, jr.'s, uncle and foster father, was shown to be $190,044.

It was also said in the accounting that the trustees held that the estate of Mayor Gaynor was entitled to $24,-187 in commissions. That amount has not been paid, however, as an appeal has been taken on it by William Zieg-
